

To whom it may concern,

The Telephone Privacy Law for Indiana has been re-opened by the Federal Communications Commission. The Consumer Bankers Association wants to impose an “established business relationship” (EBR) on Indiana consumers. There has been a “joint petition” filed by thirty three (33) groups that want the federal government to prohibit states from regulating any telemarketing.

Leave our law the way it is. If I wanted there business (telemarketers) I would have called them. This isn't a matter for the federal government. Let the individual states decide what they want. The telemarketers are just upset because they are going to have to use a different tactic to get business. Don't let the telemarketers force you, to force us, to put up with them. Help us put an end to there harassment and leave the power in the states hands.

Thank you,

John Ramos
